1. L'Amicale Culturelle des Roumains de Paris et la Region Parisienne, a recently organized Rumanian association, has its offices at 10 rue Lancry, Paris Xe. C. Jesover* is reported to be President of the association, which source terms a new (Rumanian) National Front**, and Georges Bocu*** (also spelled Boc), a former member of the Association des Roumains en France, is Secretary.
2. The first issue of a monthly bulletin published by the organization called the "Buletinul Amicalei Culturale a Românilor din Paris si Regiunea Parisana", appeared in January 1949. The publication is printed in Rumanian by the A.B.C. printing office at 11 rue Louis-Blanc, Paris Xe.

Comment. One Doctor Jesover is listed as a Vice President of the newly formed Comite Francais pour la Defense des Immigres (C.F.D.I.) created for the purpose of carrying on the functions formerly performed by the Centre d'Action et de la Defense des Immigres (C.A.D.I.) which was dissolved by a decree of the French Ministry of Interior 27 December 1948.

Comment. The Rumanian National Front, an organization controlled by the Rumanian Legation in Paris, was dissolved by the French authorities and became the Association des Roumains en France. The new name was unacceptable to the authorities and on 9 April 1948 the organization renamed itself the Association des Roumains Amis de la France. This organization was also abolished by the Surete Nationale in November 1948, and the newspaper "La Roumanie Libre" was suspended.

Comment. Source previously reported that Bocu, whom he described as an important Communist, was said to have transmitted large sums of money to striking miners in northern France.
